

Members of a Board of Education may legally act only as a body, pursuant to majority vote in a properly convened meeting. The actions of individual Board members have no legal authority nor should they be considered binding on the Board.